“ Jeff... Although we were only facebook friends, you touched my life more than you know... Your strength and determination as you faced each challenge that came along showed so much about who you were as a person. Gone from all of us too soon, You are a beautiful flower that has been hand picked to be in the garden of heaven, with a new and shining face, praising God with no more pain or suffering... May you rest in peace, and may your family and friends be comforted knowing that this was Gods plan for you, and you have fulfilled all that was required of you to do here on earth.

“ My thoughts have not left you since my bitter, cold ride back up to the mountains. I think that it really just hit me that you're gone. God aloud me to be there during the time you were in hospice for a reason. I will always remember the day before I left and two days before you passed, sitting next to you in that chair. You gently placed your head on my chest and I embraced you with a gentle hug and rubbed the side of your face. We sat like that for twenty minutes, but to me it's as if time stopped for a moment. You were breathing deeply and peacefully. I wondered if you could feel the tears streaming down my face and on to yours. I was trying to be strong. I embraced my dear friend for that twenty minutes and thought about how this beautiful person had impacted my life in so many ways. The love and memories that Jeff has given me the past twelve years will forever make me remember the importance of true friendship and unconditional love. It's is a rarity in life and a blessing in its own. I was walking to work this morning and the thought of Jeff came rushing into my mind. For a moment I thought I felt him with me. I asked myself how knowing Jeff and losing Jeff had changed me. My response to myself was that life is so precious and goes by so fast. I want to live with more passion and less fear! Have more compassion and more understanding that there is something so much bigger beyond this world that we cannot fathom. I'm glad my dear friend is in that place, happy and free, floating around and going everywhere he always wanted to go. I'm sure he's watching over all of us. I will always cherish this friendship. You will forever be my dear Poodle.

“ Jeff,

I will forever remember you, my friend. I know we didn't see one another that much after I moved from Chattanooga, but I always cherished our friendship. I will miss you and please rest in peace in the arms of God....Until we meet again! - Steven Borden

“ For nearly two decades Jeff has been such a special part of my life. I always had a confidant, a partner in crime, and someone who had my back. My safety net is gone and I feel alone. I miss and love you so much.

“ So so sad to hear about Jeff. I saw him frequently where he worked and was always nice and made me smile. I recently moved to another state at the time I heard about the illness and wish I could turn the clock back and see him one more time

John Jones - December 08, 2013 at 10:17 AM

“ So many random things I remember that make me smile when I think of you... The head shake you did with the quirky smile and holding your hand up has become an image that plays in my head often the past few days. I remember our Red Lobster days and the conversations. Then finding you again at Images. The night that I brought my husband out there with me has always been a special memory of you because of how comfortable you made him feel when he was out of his element. I never thanked you for that. I love you friend. See you again soon!

“ Praying for the family. It is good to know that Christ was important in his life. Just as I saw it in his parents and his grandparents.

Ken Hurley - December 08, 2013 at 07:50 AM

“ I remember when we worked at red lobster together. When we shared a section together and I had 4 tables running around everywhere and Jeff like 2 tables and he was chillin. He looked at me and said to turn my tables faster. We have always laughed about that even years later. Jeff Carter you will be missed but I know that you're in peace and you are happy. I will see you in Heaven someday. Peace and love

“ jeff i will miss you just as much as the next person ,you knew how to make someone smile when they didnt even want to really be out, there was a few times i would go out with some friends and i didnt feel good and u would make me my fav drink and tell me this will make you feel better and tell me you loved me and called me your little monkey girl, (cause he'd make me the monkey juice) now u are in that big new place and i will see u when i get there and tell stazyia , my mom and dad ,I LOVE AND MISS THEM AND LOVE AND MISS YOU TOO, RIP SWEETIE

Samantha Hawkins - December 07, 2013 at 09:23 AM

“ He was quiet till you got to know him then he was a very sweet guy. I got used to seeing him at Images first when my hubby worked then then after when we just went there to hang out. He will be missed but now where he is he is whole & without pain

Debra Gordon - December 07, 2013 at 08:42 AM

“ When I have 1st met Jeff was when i started working at Images Bar. I thought he was a lil stranded cause he never talk to me, but then I got to know him after working with him and found out what a nice and cool guy he really was. And even though I'm not working the bar anymore i will miss him and I know the Images family and his personal family will miss him even more. Heaven and GOD is getting a fine great person.

“ I have always had a special place in my heart for Jeff, he was always very real with me, I always took what he said as a "fact". He always had a positive to say to me, my heart goes out to his Family, and his friends. It's sad when we loose a young person who contribute's so much to so many people. I am very honored to have known Jeff, and I am happy to know I have another Angel in Heaven watching over me. Blessed be his family, and blessed be his many friends. You had a very well raised child, and to his friends "we had a very good influence in our life by knowing Jeff" God Bless everyone involved in this young person's life.

“ I wasn't very close to Jeff, as so many were, but the times that I did chat with him, he was very kind and considerate. I always enjoyed our conversations though they were few, they were always appreciated. I have had him in my prayers for a while now and I am praying now for his family and close friends. I know he will be missed by so many.

“ I have always understood your wheres, whys, and hows my little curmudgeon philosopher. Your older and wiser soul was trapped. How jealous I am that you are free and I am still stuck in this clay pot of mine bound to the earth. My memories of you are in the file cabinet marked heart. With love and appreciation of what you shared with me.
